PSHCE INTENT

Personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) education is an important and necessary part of all pupils' education. All schools should teach PSHE, drawing on good practice.

PSHE is a non-statutory subject and therefore we allow teachers to be flexible in delivering high-quality PSHE within their school.

What the children say about PSHCE at Uley School

I like playing would you rather because it gives you the chance to explain your ideas.

I like playing lots of different social games.

I like doing activities where we can use our imagination, like when we wrote about our dream pet.

WHAT PSHCE LOOKS LIKE AT ULEY SCHOOL

At Uley Primary School we see Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) as being at the centre of all that we do. Through our curriculum, our school environment and our school ethos, we promote pupils' self-esteem and emotional well-being. We help them to form and maintain worthwhile and satisfying relationship and encourage our pupils to play a positive role in contributing to the life of the school and the wider community.

Overall, we believe that education in PSHE and Citizenship enables children to become healthier and more independent and responsible members of society.

Aims

The aims of PSHE are to enable the children to develop the skills, knowledge and attitudes they will need throughout their lives. Our objectives in the teaching of PSHE and Citizenship are for all of our children:

- To know and understand what is meant by a healthy lifestyle
- To be aware of safety issues, including how to identify and reduce risks
- To understand what makes for good relationships with others
- To be thoughtful and responsible of the community and their school
- To develop self-confidence and self-esteem
- To understand the importance of resilience
- To make informed choices regarding personal and social issues

Our schools aims and objectives are also underpinned by the British values and our school's vision to 'Live, Learn and Flourish.'
